2003 Independent Expenditures Exceed $185,000

Olympia-Independent campaign expenditures in the 2003 election now exceed $185,000.

Approximately 59% ($109,734) of the reported independent expenditures were made for printing and distribution of direct mail, $52,835 was expended for telephone calls, $21,770 for radio advertisements and $3,141 for newspaper ads.

An independent expenditure is an expenditure made without cooperation, consultation or in concert with, or at the request of, a candidate or ballot measure campaign or the agents of those campaigns.

The Public Disclosure Commission web site provides daily updates on independent expenditures for the 2003 election.

Access to independent expenditures for 2003 and other highlighted campaign activity can be found on the PDC web site at www.pdcc.wa.gov under the section marked 2003 Election.
